

Recorded live births

1998-2000

Co-operation between Statistics South Africa (Stats SA), the citizens of the country, the private sector and government institutions is essential for a successful statistical system. Without continued co-operation and goodwill, the timely release of relevant and reliable official statistics will not be possible.

Stats SA publishes approximately three hundred different releases each year. It is not economically viable to produce them in more than one of South Africa's eleven official languages. Since the releases are used extensively, not only locally, but also by international economic and social-scientific communities, Stats SA releases are published in English only.

RECORDED BIRTHS, 1998, 1999 AND 2000

Simultaneous to the decrease in the number of births in South Africa, the number of birth registrations has increased. The reading from the population register on 03 April 2001 showed that the number of births that occurred in 1998 (575 762) has decreased by 18,7% compared to the 468 292 births that occurred in 2000. In spite of the decline in the number of births, registrations increased by 15,7%, from 1 216 337 in 1998 to 1 407 833 in 2000.

Introduction

The historical overview of birth statistics in South Africa and their official reporting has been outlined in a previous issue of statistical release-P0305 (1990-1997). In this issue we present revised registration figures for 1998 and 1999. There is new information that has emerged in relation to Table 2.2 of the 1998-1999 - Recorded births publication. Further details are given in the explanatory notes. The title of the publication has been modified from 'Recorded births' to 'Recorded live births' to distinctly highlight the move to separate stillbirths from live births. Prior to 1997, stillbirths were reported as a separate column but published in the same release as live births. Stillbirths for 1997 and later years are now to be published in a separate statistical release. In the current release, we also present the births statistics for 2000. We continue with the dual reporting on recorded births by using the date of birth in the population register (occurrence-based reporting), and the date of registration of the birth as established by Stats SA (registration-based reporting). An explanation of the relationship between these two sets of data is provided in the explanatory notes.

Registration-based reporting of births

The total annual number of registered births in South Africa at the end of 1998 was 1 216 337 and this increased by 15,7% to 1 407 833 in December 2000. This increase is a continuation of a trend that has been occurring since 1992, as shown in Figure 1. The total number of birth registrations for any given year comprises both current registrations (for births registered in the year of birth) and late registrations (for births registered later than the year of birth). Prior to 1998 (1990-1997), the bulk of total registration comprised late registrations. Also the rate of increase in current registration was lower than that of total registrations. However, Figure 1 shows that between 1998 and 2000 current registrations showed a profound increase. The observed increase in current registrations between 1998 and 2000 is largely the result of the nation-wide campaign to improve birth registrations.

Occurrence-based reporting of births

The population register, in effect, gives the number of births that have been updated for lateness in reporting. Some details about the South African population register are given in the explanatory notes. Table 1.1 shows the number of births broken down by sex and citizenship of the child from 1990 till 2000 as reflected in the population register as at 03 April 2001. The number of births has decreased from 575 762 in 1998 to 468 292 in 2000. The sex ratio at birth for each of the occurrence year does not show any definite pattern. Table 1.1 indicates that there were more male than female births in all the years from 1991, 1993-1994 and 1996-1998. For the years 1992, 1995, 1999-2000 female births exceeded male births.

A comparison of the trend of registered births (corrected for lateness) at two or more points in time can help to show the actual trend in births. Figure 2 shows such an annual comparison of recorded births, for the periods 1990-1997 (as at 11 September 1999) and for the period 1990-2000 (as at 03 April 2001). Even with the updating that occurred between these two periods, the pattern of declining fertility remains the same. The trend shows a smooth gradual decline, supporting the evidence of declining fertility in South Africa.

Table 1.2 shows the monthly distribution of recorded births and Figures 3a and 3b reflect these numbers graphically. While a generally downward trend in overall births has been shown in Figure 2, the graphical presentation of births by month of occurrence highlights several striking features. Firstly, the seasonal variation of births clearly indicates that the month in which childbearing is highest is September. Secondly, a smaller peak (in March) is also evident. The marked seasonality in births comes out more clearly in the earlier period (1990-1995) than the latter period (1996-2000).

Comparison between occurrence and registration-based reporting of births

Tables 1.3 and 1.4 show the relationship between the year of occurrence of births and the year of registration. Looking diagonally down Table 1.3, one sees that, with the exception of 1998, births occurring during a certain year and registered in the same year have been increasing since 1993 (also shown in Figure 1) after a decrease between 1990 and 1993. From Figure 4, it can also be observed that, for all the occurrence years, registration is highest in the current year. From 1991 to 1994, it can be noted that the second highest number of births was registered five to seven years after birth. However, from 1995 to 1999, the second highest number of registration occurs in the second year after birth.

For the births that occurred prior to 1995, there is a steady increase in birth registrations after the third year until school-going age. Thereafter, registration starts to taper off. From Table 1.3 it can be observed that from 1995 to 1999, the births registered in the second year of life as a proportion of those registered during the first year has been increasing steadily from 1995 (28,1%) to 2000 (43,6%).

Table 1.4 shows a comparison of total annual births against registration. The number of births that were registered between 1991 and 1994 clearly falls short of the births that occurred. From 1995 till 2000 registrations exceeded occurrences but the difference between the two is expected to decrease as the population register is updated. It is hard to give a definite interpretation on what is going on. The births that occurred in the earlier years, 1991-1993, have been updated for a longer period than those of the more recent years, 1994-2000. It is possible that, given sufficient time for updating births in the later period, a similar pattern as shown for the earlier period will emerge.

On the other hand, it is possible that the increase in birth registration five to seven years after birth (largely due to enrolment in school) is now being overtaken by an increase in birth registration two years after birth. This latter phenomenon could be due to improved awareness about birth registration or due to the enrolment of infants in day-care centres.

Registration-based reporting of births with geographic breakdown

Figure 5 shows a breakdown of total birth registrations by province for 1998, 1999 and 2000. In the three-year period between the end of 1998 to the end of 2000, KwaZulu-Natal had the highest total number of birth registrations followed by Northern Province and Eastern Cape. Northern Cape had no significant change in overall registration during the three years. From the end of 1998 to December 1999, the provinces that had the largest percentage increase in total birth registrations were Eastern Cape and Northern Province. During the same period, KwaZulu-Natal and North West experienced declines in registration. From December 1999 to December 2000, KwaZulu-Natal showed a marked increase in registration followed by Western Cape, Eastern Cape and Mpumalanga. Total registrations in Northern Province decreased between 1999 and 2000.

To gain insight into the patterns in total registrations, Figures 6 and 7 show total registrations for 1998, 1999 and 2000, broken down into current and late registrations, respectively. The provinces with the largest number of current annual registrations between 1998 and 2000 were Gauteng, KwaZulu-Natal and Western Cape. All the provinces consistently showed an increase in current registrations for the three years except Northern Cape. The majority of the provinces (Gauteng, KwaZulu-Natal, Mpumalanga, Northern Province and North West) had continuous increases in current registrations despite having had fluctuation in total registration, confirming that the bulk of the registrations were current. The provinces that recorded a high number of late registrations were KwaZulu-Natal, Northern Province and Eastern Cape. While there were eight provinces that showed increases in current registration during the three years, only three provinces, Western Cape, Eastern Cape and Free State, had corresponding increases in late registrations. It is noteworthy that Northern Cape consistently observed the lowest number of current and late registrations.

Tables 2.1, 2.2 and 2.3 show a geographical breakdown of registrations for 1998, 1999 and 2000, respectively. For each province, among the registered births for that year, most of the births occurred in a few districts. This is the same for the provinces with the highest number of registered births as well as those with the lowest number. For the Western Cape, more than half of the births in the province occurred in the following districts: Bellville, Cape Town, Wynberg, and Mitchells Plain. For Gauteng, almost half of the births occurred in Johannesburg and Pretoria. Similarly, for KwaZulu-Natal, Durban and Lower Umfolozi accounted for a quarter of all births. Durban accounted for almost a third of all births delivered and registered in the same year in KwaZulu-Natal. For Northern Cape, more than half of all births delivered in 1998, 1999 up to the end of 2000 and registered in the same years occurred in Kimberley and Gordonia.

Tables 3.1, 3.2 and 3.3 show a geographical breakdown of registrations by gender. No apparent difference in registration by gender can be observed from the data. The dominance of any given gender in registration seems to fluctuate from district to district within a province. Tables 4.1, 4.2 and 4.3 show a comparison of the age of the parents, in five-year age groups. In all three years, for women, childbearing peaks between the age of 20 and 24. The modal childbearing age for men is much later at ages 30-34 except for the year 2000 where childbearing peaked at ages 20-24 for men. At this stage, it is early to know whether this reflects a change in childbearing behaviour among males or whether it is a temporary phenomenon.

EXPLANATORY NOTESUpdate with regard to Recorded births: P0305 – 1998-1999 (published on 05 July 2000)

There is new information that has emerged in relation to Table 2.2 of the 1998-1999 - Recorded births publication. Title dates (e.g. 1999, 1998, 1997 etc.) were inadvertently added to the birth figures during the processing of the release. This affects the columns with calendar year titles but does not affect the columns with text titles such as 'grand total' or 'total'. The affected table has been revised in this statistical release.

Source of data

The two sets of birth statistics that are reported here (occurrence-based and reporting-based) come from the same source, namely, Nucleus Bureau. When the clerks at the various offices of the Department of Home Affairs (DHA) capture the information about a birth, they do so directly onto the database at Nucleus Bureau. These transactions are used to update the population register database. A more detailed narrative on eligibility for inclusion in the population register is given below.

For the purpose of producing vital statistics, the following system is followed: every day all the (civil) transactions done at all the DHA offices are written onto a cassette. At the end of every month, a combined set of cassettes is created containing all the transactions done for the month. These transactions are read and the birth transactions are extracted for processing at Stats SA. The year in which the births are registered is the registration or processing year. Using this information, Stats SA shows the breakdown of the births registered according to the year in which the births occurred.

While birth information sent to Stats SA is the same as that in the population register, there is a difference of format between the two. Stats SA's data is based on births registered during the year (registration-based). On the other hand, entries on the population register reflect the date of birth. The date of registration of birth is not stored on the population registration file. For this reason, the population register can only be used to obtain births data broken down by date of birth (occurrence-based). By continuously updating the population register for late registration, the occurrence-based data from the population register gets closer and closer to the true level of births. In the past, Stats SA reported on registration based data but gave a breakdown of late registration by year of occurrence. No comparison was done between the registration data and the occurrence-based data (updated for late registrations). In a situation where birth registrations are complete (with very few late registrations), the two perspectives are nearly the same. However, if there are a large number of late registrations, the two perspectives become widely dissimilar. With improvements in birth registration, the recorded data from the two sources will gradually converge.

South African Population Register

The South African Population Register deals with births, deaths, identity, marriages, divorces and movements of all South African citizens and permanent residents. Thus, each of the Acts dealing with any aspect of civil registration has implications for the information inputted onto the Population Register. The Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1992 (Act No. 51 of 1992) guides the registration of births and death throughout South Africa. The Birth and Death Registration Act No. 51 of 1992 was subsequently amended in 1997 (Act No. 67 of 1997) and in 1998 (Act No. 43 of 1998). Another Act that is pertinent to the population register is the Identification Act that was passed in 1997 (Act No. 68 of 1997). This Act repealed previous Identification Acts (Act No.72 of 1986, Act No. 21 of 1991, Act No. 4 of 1993 and Act No. 47 of 1995). From these various Acts and amendments, the following can be said about those persons whose particulars are eligible to be included on the population register:

- All children born of South African citizens and permanent residents when the notice of the birth is given within one year after the birth of the child.
- All children born of South African citizens and permanent residents when the notice of the birth is given one year after the birth of - the child together with the prescribed requirement for a late registration of birth.
- All South African citizens and permanent residents who upon attainment of the age of 16 applied for and were granted
- identification cards.
- All South African citizens and permanent residents who die at any age after birth.
- All South African citizens and permanent residents who depart permanently from South Africa.

Persons whose particulars are not eligible for inclusion on the population register are listed below:

- Non-South African citizens who sojourn temporarily in the country.
- All South African Citizens and permanent residents who died before notice of his/her birth had been given.

DEFINITION OF CONCEPTS USEDP0305

- 1.1 Live birth is the complete expulsion or extraction from its mother's womb of a product of conception, irrespective of duration of the pregnancy, which after such separation, breathes or shows any other evidence of life.
- 1.2 Recorded live births – Recorded live births (birth registrations) indicate the number of births recorded (registered) in a specific year, irrespective of when the birth actually occurred. The births recorded in any given year include the births that occurred during that year plus other births that occurred in years prior to the year of registration. It should be noted that not all births are recorded (registered).
- 1.3 Late registration – Births occurring in a given calendar year but recorded in subsequent calendar years.
- 1.3 Population group – As from 1991 no distinction is made between the different population groups in the information collected by the Department of Home Affairs. The statistics collected, therefore, refer to all population groups combined.
- 1.5 Magisterial districts – (Tables 2.1, 2.2, 2.3, 3.1, 3.2 and 3.3). Due to changes in boundaries of magisterial districts, the data from 1994 are not comparable in all regards with those of previous years. As from 1994 the twelfth edition of the Statistics South Africa, Standard Code List of Areas, Report No. 09-09-03 (1994), has been followed.
- 1.6 Stillbirths – A stillbirth is a death prior to the expulsion or extraction from its mother's womb of a product of conception, irrespective of duration of pregnancy. The death is indicated by that, after such separation, the child does not breathe or show other evidence of life. Prior to 1997, stillbirths were reported as a separate column but in the same release as live births. Stillbirths for 1997 and later years are now to be published in a separate statistical release.
