KEY FINDINGS

Registration-based reporting of live births

The total number of live birth registrations for any given year comprises both current registrations (for live births registered in the year of birth) and late registrations (for live births registered later than the year of birth). There was a decrease in the annual number of registered live births in South Africa in 2004, as compared to 2003 (1 475 809 and 1 677 415 respectively) (Figure 1). Although there was an increase in registrations of current births for 2004 (728 283) than in 2003 (621 887) this decrease in total registrations could be attributed to late registrations. Nevertheless, from 1994 there has been a steady increase in the number of registrations of current births. This could be attributed to the nationwide campaign geared towards improving birth registrations.

Occurrence-based reporting of live births

The population register provides the number of live births that have been updated for lateness in reporting. Details on the South African population register can be found in the explanatory notes. Table 1.1 shows the number of live births according to sex and citizenship of the child from 1991 to 2004, as reflected in the population register on 02 April 2005. Overall, there were more male than female births in all the years except for the year 1992 and 1993, where the number of female births was slightly higher than that of male births.

A comparison of the trends in registered live births (corrected for lateness) at two or more points are indicative of the actual-trend in births. Figure 2 shows such an annual comparison of recorded births, for the periods 1991–1997 (as at 11 September 1999) and for the period 1991–2004 (as at 02 April 2005). Even with the updating (1991–2000) that occurred between these two periods, the pattern of declining fertility remains the same. There is a smooth gradual decline followed by a slight increase between 1996 and 2001 and then an increase after 2002.

Comparison between occurrence and registration-based reporting of live births

There was an increase in the number of birth occurrences from 720 260 in 2003 to 767 469 in 2004. This increase in the number of occurrences is confirmed by the increase in the number of registrations for 2004 (728 283) compared to 2003 (621 887). The relationship between the year of occurrence of births and the year of registration are illustrated in Tables 1.2 and 1.3. The number of births occurring during a particular year and registered in the same year has been increasing since 1995. Between 1991 and 1994, the number of birth registrations was far below that of birth occurrences. From 1995 to 2004, the total number of birth registrations far exceeded birth occurrences; however, the difference between the two is expected to decrease as the population register is updated. It is important to note that the births that occurred in the earlier years, 1991–1994, have been updated for a longer period than those of the more recent years, 1994–2004. It is possible that, given sufficient time for updating live births at a later period, a similar pattern as shown for the earlier period will emerge. Also, it is possible that the increase in birth registration five to seven years after birth is now being overtaken by an increase in birth registration two years after birth. This situation could be due to increased awareness about birth registration or due to the enrolment of children at school and registration for the child support grant.

Registration-based reporting of live births with geographic breakdown

The total registrations for 2004 based on current and late registrations are shown in Figures 3 and 4. Gauteng, KwaZulu-Natal and Eastern Cape had the highest number of current total registrations (excluding late registration (Fig 3) for 2004. KwaZulu-Natal, Eastern Cape and Limpopo recorded a high number of late registrations (Fig 4). The Northern Cape consistently recorded the lowest number of current and late registrations. Just below a quarter of registrations for 2004 occurred in KwaZulu-Natal (22,3%); Eastern Cape had the second highest number of live birth registrations (20,6%), followed by Gauteng (14,8%).

As indicated earlier, there were more births that were registered in 2004 (728 283) compared to (621 887) in 2003. Table 2.1 illustrates the geographical breakdown of registrations for 2004. Across all provinces, all the births that occurred in any particular year were concentrated in few municipalities. In Gauteng, a significant number of births occurred in the City of Johannesburg (63 099) and Ekurhuleni Metropolitan (31 454). The Western Cape, Cape Town (54 947) had the highest number of births, while in KwaZulu-Natal, Durban (48 473) had the highest number of births.

Table 3.1 shows a geographical breakdown of registrations by gender. There were no significant differences in the number of registered births of gender. Generally, there were fluctuations in the dominance of any given gender in registration in the municipalities within a province.

Consideration of the age of the mother and father for registered births in 2004 indicates that most births were linked to women aged 20-29 and men aged 30-34.

Explanatory notes

Source of data

The two sets of birth statistics that are reported here (occurrence-based and reporting-based) come from the same source, namely, Nucleus Bureau. When the clerks at the various offices of the Department of Home Affairs (DHA) capture the information about a birth, they do so directly onto the database at Nucleus Bureau. These transactions are used to update the population register database. A more detailed narrative on eligibility for inclusion in the population register is given below.

For the purpose of producing vital statistics, the following system is followed: everyday all the (civil) transactions carried out at all the DHA offices are written onto a cassette. At the end of every month, a combined set of cassettes is created containing all the transactions done for the month. These transactions are read and the birth transactions are extracted for processing at Stats SA. The year in which the births are registered is the registration or processing year. Using this information, Stats SA provides the breakdown of the registered births according to the year in which the births occurred.

While birth information sent to Stats SA is the same as that in the population register, there is a difference of format between the two. Stats SA's data is based on births registered during the year (registration-based). On the other hand, entries on the population register reflect the date of birth. The date of registration of birth is not stored on the population registration file. For this reason, the population register can only be used to obtain births data broken down by date of birth (occurrence-based). By continuously updating the population register for late registration, the occurrence-based data from the population register gets closer and closer to the true level of births. In a situation where birth registrations are complete (with very few late registrations), the occurrence-based perspective (with births updated for late registrations) is very similar to the registration based perspective (with all registration births considered irrespective of year). However, if there is a large number of late registrations, the two perspectives become widely dissimilar. With improvements in birth registration, the recorded data from the two sources will gradually converge.

South African population register

The South African population register deals with births, deaths, identity, marriages, divorces and movements of all South African citizens and permanent residents. Thus, each of the Acts dealing with any aspect of civil registration has implications for the information inputted onto the Population Register. The Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1992 (Act No. 51 of 1992) guides the registration of births and death throughout South Africa. The act was subsequently amended in 1997 (Act No. 67 of 1997) and in 1998 (Act No. 43 of 1998). Another act pertinent to the population register is the Identification (Act No. 68 of 1997). This act repealed previous Identification Acts (Act No.72 of 1986, Act No. 21 of 1991, Act No. 4 of 1993 and Act No. 47 of 1995). From these various acts and amendments, the following persons and particulars are eligible to be included on the population register:

- ❑ All children born of South African citizens and permanent residents when the notice of the birth is given within one year after the birth of the child.
- ❑ All children born of South African citizens and permanent residents when the notice of the birth is given one year after the birth of the child together with the prescribed requirement for a late registration of birth.
- ❑ All South African citizens and permanent residents who upon attainment of the age of 16 applied for and were granted identification cards.
- ❑ All South African citizens and permanent residents who die at any age after birth.
- ❑ All South African citizens and permanent residents who depart permanently from South Africa.

Persons whose particulars are not eligible for inclusion on the population register are listed below:

- ❑ Non-South African citizens who sojourn temporarily in the country.
- ❑ All South African citizens and permanent residents who died before notice of his/her birth had been given.

Municipal Demarcation

Prior to 1994, there were about 1 300 municipalities throughout South Africa. These were reduced to 843 following the 1995/1996 local government elections. Subsequently, the Municipal Demarcation Act, 1998 (Act No 27 of 1998) established the Municipal Demarcation Board and charged it with the responsibility of determining new municipal boundaries for the country. In this report we have included the municipalities in accordance with their magisterial districts.

Population group –As from 1991 no distinction is made between the different population groups in the information by the Department of Home Affairs. The statistics collected, therefore, refer to all population groups combined.

DEFINITION OF CONCEPTS USED

- 1.1 Live birth is the complete expulsion or extraction from its mother's womb of a product of conception, irrespective of duration of the pregnancy, which after such separation, breathes or shows any other evidence of life.
- 1.2 Recorded live births – Recorded live births (birth registrations) indicate the number of births recorded (registered) in a specific year, irrespective of when the birth actually occurred. The births recorded in any given year include the births that occurred during that year plus other births that occurred in years prior to the year of registration. It should be noted that not all births are recorded (registered).
- 1.3 Late registration – Births occurring in a given calendar year but recorded in subsequent calendar years.
- 1.4 Magisterial districts – (Tables 2.1 and 3.1). Due to changes in boundaries of magisterial districts, the data from 1994 are not comparable in all regards with those of previous years. As from 1994 the twelfth edition of the Statistics South Africa, Standard Code List of Areas, Report No. 09-09-03 (1994), has been followed.
- 1.5 Municipality boundary – (Tables 2.1 and 3.1) There are three categories of municipalities in terms of the Constitution: category A (metropolitan), category B (local) and category C (district).
- 1.6 Stillbirths – A stillbirth is a death prior to the expulsion or extraction from its mother's womb of a product of conception, irrespective of duration of pregnancy. That indicates the death after such separation, the child does not breathe or show other evidence of life. Prior to 1997, stillbirths were reported as a separate column but in the same release as live births. Stillbirths for 1997 and later years are now to be published in a separate statistical release.

General information

Stats SA publishes approximately 300 different statistical releases each year. It is not economically viable to produce them in more than one of South Africa's eleven official languages. Since the releases are used extensively, not only locally but also by international economic and social-scientific communities, Stats SA releases are published in English only.

Stats SA has copyright on this publication. Users may apply the information as they wish, provided that they acknowledge Stats SA as the source of the basic data wherever they process, apply, utilise, publish or distribute the data; and also that they specify that the relevant application and analysis (where applicable) result from their own processing of the data.
