Interpretative summary

General

This report contains the results of the 1996 Census of Mining. The report provides principal statistics regarding the mining industry such as the number of establishments, total employment, income, total salaries and wages, intermediate consumption, value added, capital expenditure on new assets and net profit according to province and type of mine.

Number and total income of mines

According to the results of the 1996 Census of Mining there were 760 mines with a total income of R70 047 million in South Africa in 1996 (cf. table A, columns 2 and 3). The largest number of mines were situated in Gauteng (118 or 15,5% of mines), followed by Northern Cape (111 or 14,6%) and Western Cape (108 or 14,2%). Gauteng contributed the most to total mining income (R14 544 million or 20,8%), followed by North West (R13 968 million or 19,9%) and Mpumalanga (R13 606 million or 19,4%) (cf. table A and figure 1).

Employment and salaries and wages

At the last pay-day in June 1996, 563 372 people were employed in the mining industry in South Africa. Gauteng employed the largest number of employees (159 126 employees or 28,2% of total employment in the mining industry), followed by North West (140 522 employees or 24,9%) and Free State (114 384 employees or 20,3%) (cf. table A, column 4).

The mining industry paid R17 982 million in salaries and wages for the financial year ended on any date between 1 January 1996 and 31 December 1996 (cf. table A, column 5). In Gauteng salaries and wages paid by the mining industry amounted to R4 782 million (26,6% of the total salaries and wages paid), while salaries and wages paid by the mining industry in North West and Mpumalanga amounted to R4 430 million (24,6%) and R2 880 million (16,0%), respectively.

Capital expenditure on new assets

Capital projects to the value of R6 202 million were undertaken by the mining industry in the 1996 financial year in South Africa. Most of the capital expenditure on new assets was recorded in Gauteng (R1 697 million or 27,4% of the total expenditure on new assets), followed by North West (R1 314 million or 21,2% of the total expenditure) and Mpumalanga (R1 058 million or 17,1% of the total expenditure).

Profitability ratio

According to the 1996 Census of Mining, the average profitability ratio of the mining industry (the ratio of net profit to total income expressed as a percentage) was 17,2% while the mining industry in the Eastern Cape recorded the lowest profitability ratio (1,0%). The mining industry in KwaZulu-Natal reflected the highest profitability ratio (25,6%) in 1996, followed by the mining industry in the Northern Cape (25,0%) (cf. table A, column 8).

Major mining divisions

According to the 1996 Census of Mining, a significant number of mines were classified in the stone and quarrying division (404 mines or 53,2% of the total number of mines) and the other non-metallic minerals division (106 mines or 13,9% of the total number of mines).

The gold and uranium mines contributed the most to the total income of the mining industry in 1996 (R28 251 million or 40,3%), followed by the other metal ores mines (R17 509 million or 25,0%) and the coal and lignite mines (R13 509 million or 19,3%) (cf. table B, column 3).

Additional information

Explanatory Notes

- Introduction 1 Statistics South Africa (Stats SA) periodically conducts a Census of Mining covering private mining establishments, public corporations and government enterprises. The purpose of the Census of Mining is to obtain information to re-base the quarterly Gross Domestic Product (GDP), which is used to monitor and develop government policy. Furthermore, the results are used to compile the supply and use tables. The information is also used by the private sector in the analysis of comparative business and industry performance. This publication contains the detailed results of the 1996 Census of Mining and information on the financial performance of the mining industry during the 1996 financial year.
- Scope of the Mining Census 2 For purposes of the census, mining means -
- any activities regarding underground and surface mining, including stone, clay and sand quarries/pits, boreholes (except for water) and salt-pans, as well as all supplementary activities for the dressing and beneficiating of ores and other crude materials such as crushing, screening, washing, cleaning, grading, milling, flotation, melting, pelleting, topping and other preparations needed to render the material marketable;
 - restoration, rehabilitation, reshaping, revegetating and reclaiming of areas affected by mining activities; and
 - any administrative, clerical, sales, research or other activities directly related to the aforementioned activities.
- The following activities are excluded -
- work performed on a contract or fee basis in the development and preparation of mining properties and sites such as drilling, shaft-sinking, tunneling, cementation and mining construction work by outside contractors;
 - the refining of gold and other minerals on a contract or fee basis; and
 - exploration/prospecting on a contract or fee basis.
- Classification 3 The 1993 edition of the Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities (SIC), Fifth Edition, Report No. 09-90-02, was used to classify the statistical units in the census. The SIC is based on the 1990 International Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities (ISIC) with suitable adaptations for local conditions. Statistics in this publication are presented at SIC division, major group and group level. Each statistical unit is classified to an industry which reflects the predominant activity of the establishment.
- Statistical unit 4 The basic statistical unit for the collection of information was a mining establishment. An establishment is the smallest economic unit that functions as a separate entity. Each establishment is classified to an industry (cf. paragraph 3).
- Survey methodology and design 5 Census information was collected from 641 of the 760 mining establishments situated in the Republic of South Africa. The total income of the 641 responding mining establishments contributed 84,3% to the total income of the mining industry in the Republic of South Africa (cf. technical notes, table F, p. 137). The financial information of the other 119 mining establishments was estimated. Respondents were sorted into size groups according to group and income. The financial information of a non-respondent in a size group was estimated according to information furnished by respondents in the same size group.

6 In order to ensure the confidentiality of data furnished by individual establishments, information relating to less than four enterprises in a size group, is either not released, or is published in such a manner that the data furnished by any particular establishment are not disclosed. Therefore, certain mining groups have been combined with others in the same mining major group or otherwise have been indicated with “-” (not available).

Reference period

7 Completed questionnaires were rendered by mining establishments and their head offices regarding certain financial and employment statistics for their financial year which ended on any date between 1 January 1996 and 31 December 1996. However, details relating to employment were requested as at the last pay-day of June 1996.

Comparability

8 As from 1996, the Census of Mining includes information of the former Transkei, Bophuthatswana, Venda and Ciskei (TBVC) states and the results are therefore not strictly comparable with the results of 1990 Census of Mining and 1993 Census of Mining.

Stats SA publishes approximately 300 different statistical releases each year. It is not economically viable to produce them in more than one of South Africa's eleven official languages. Since the releases are used extensively, not only locally but also by international economic and social-scientific communities, Stats SA releases are published in English only.
